

Two Colleagues at a Grocery Store Talking about Their Schedule - (Mistakes on Script)

1 (Fatima): Hey Jonas, do you has a second?

2 (Jonas): Yeah, what's up?

1: I just check the schedule on the wall, and I'm listing for Saturday again. I thought I asks to switch?

2: Oh right, I remember now. You was trying to trade with Nelly, right?

1: Yeah, she said she would take my shift, but I don't sees her name there.

2: Hmm... she told me she might, but she never confirm. So I didn't made the change.

1: Oh. I was hoping to have a weekends off.

2: I get it. Saturday's going to be hectic though—we're expect a rush in the afternoon. There's a buy-one-get-one promotions on snacks.

1: Great... that mean I'll be stuck at register three for hour.

2: Most likely. We're going to open all the lanes just to keeps the line moving.

1: Do you think I'll have break around noon?

2: Yeah. I'll schedule your break on 12:30. That way you avoids the lunch crowd.

1: Thanks. I'll bringing something light to eat.

2: Good call. Oh—and just so you know, we'll rearrange Aisle 2 next week.

1: Really?

2: Yeah, starting Tuesday morning, we'll be move the cereal and breakfast items closer to a entrance.

1: So customers are going to gets confused.

2: Exactly. Just be ready to explaining where things is.

1: Got it. I'll try memorize the new layout ahead of time.

2: That would helps a lots.

1: By the way, are we still doing team check-ins every Friday morning?

2: Starting next week, yes. We'll be doing a short debrief at 9:15 before the store open.

1: Okay, I'll makes a note. Thanks, Jonas.

2: No problem. And if anything change with Nelly, just shoot me the message.

1: Will do. I'll following up with her today.

2: Cool. Talk to you more later.

1: See ya.

Corrected Script (Used for Audio)

1 (Fatima): Hey Jasmin, do you have a second?

2 (Jonas): Yeah, what's up?

1: I just checked the schedule on the wall, and I'm listed for Saturday again. I thought I asked to switch?

2: Oh right, I remember now. You were trying to trade with Nelly, right?

1: Yeah, she said she'd take my shift, but I don't see her name there.

2: Hmm... she told me she might, but she never confirmed. So I didn't make the change.

1: Oh. I was hoping to have the weekend off.

2: I get it. Saturday's going to be hectic though—we're expecting a rush in the afternoon. There's a buy-one-get-one promotion on snacks.

1: Great... that means I'll be stuck at register three for an hour.

2: Most likely. We're going to open all the lanes just to keep the line moving.

1: Do you think I'll have a break around noon?

2: Yeah. I'll schedule your break for 12:30. That way you avoid the lunch crowd.
1: Thanks. I'll bring something light to eat.
2: Good call. Oh—and just so you know, we'll be rearranging Aisle 2 next week.
1: Really?
2: Yeah, starting Tuesday morning, we'll be moving the cereal and breakfast items closer to the entrance.
1: So customers are going to get confused.
2: Exactly. Just be ready to explain where things are.
1: Got it. I'll try to memorize the new layout ahead of time.
2: That would help a lot.
1: By the way, are we still doing team check-ins every Friday morning?
2: Starting next week, yes. We'll be doing a short debrief at 9:15 before the store opens.
1: Okay, I'll make a note. Thanks, Jasmin.
2: No problem. And if anything changes with Nelly, just shoot me a message.
1: Will do. I'll follow up with her today.
2: Cool. Talk to you later.
1: See ya.

Audio: <https://drive.google.com/file/d/1ugUmPmGzgwAB81sd-ngs-q3LW3w6we7f/view?usp=sharing>

Doctor's Visit: Leg Pain (Script Used for Audio)

1 (Dr. Larsen): Hi there. I'm Dr. Larsen. You must be Maria, is right?
2 (Maria): Yes, that's me.
1: Come on in and have a seat. So, tell me what's been goes on.
2: Well, I've been noticing some pain in my right leg since past few days.
1: Okay. What kind of pain is it—sharp, dull, or constant it is?
2: It started as mild discomfort, but it's been gradual getting worse. Now it feels like a dull aches, especially when I walking or stand for too long.
1: Got it. Have you done anything recently that might causes it?
2: Not really. I haven't fallen or injured it, but I've been walk a lot around campus.
1: That could definitely contribute. Let me take look. Where exactly is the pain?
2: It's mostly in the lower part of my leg, around a calf.
1: Any swelling or bruising?
2: It looks a little swollen, but I haven't see any bruises.
1: I'm going to gently press on the area. Let me know if you felt any sharp pain.
2: Okay.
1: (examining) Hmm... it feels slightly inflame. But the joint seems stable, and your range of motion look good.
2: That's a relief.
1: I don't think it's serious, but it's important that you rest it. I'd recommend to limit walking for the next few days.
2: I have a couple of classes where I has to walk across campus.
1: I understand. You might want to email your professors and explain the situation. I can write you a note if it need.
2: That would help a lot.
1: I'm also going to give you some compress wrap to reduce the swelling and provide support.

2: Thank you.

1: You should elevate your leg whenever possible and apply ice for 15 minutes, two or three times every day.

2: Got it.

1: If the pain will continue past a few more days, or if it intensifies, you'll need to come back. We may consider doing imaging if it won't improve.

2: Understood.

1: I'll print out a care sheet for you with instructions. You'll be fine with a little rest and care.

2: I really appreciate it.

1: You're welcome. Let's check in next week if you're still having symptoms.

Audio : <https://drive.google.com/file/d/1BknVHNIVYk6KADzf4Huo3hl5co0yT9hl/view?usp=sharing>

Correct Script for Transcription: Doctor's Visit (Leg Pain)

1 (Dr. Larsen): Hi there. I'm Dr. Larsen. You must be Maria, right?

2 (Maria): Yes, that's me.

1: Come on in and have a seat. So, tell me what's been going on.

2: Well, I've been noticing some pain in my right leg for the past few days.

1: Okay. What kind of pain is it—sharp, dull, or constant?

2: It started as mild discomfort, but it's been gradually getting worse. Now it feels like a dull ache, especially when I walk or stand for too long.

1: Got it. Have you done anything recently that might have caused it?

2: Not really. I haven't fallen or injured it, but I've been walking a lot around campus.

1: That could definitely contribute. Let me take a look. Where exactly is the pain?

2: It's mostly in the lower part of my leg, around the calf.

1: Any swelling or bruising?

2: It looks a little swollen, but I haven't seen any bruises.

1: I'm going to gently press on the area. Let me know if you feel any sharp pain.

2: Okay.

1: (examining) Hmm... it feels slightly inflamed. But the joint seems stable, and your range of motion looks good.

2: That's a relief.

1: I don't think it's serious, but it's important that you rest it. I'd recommend limiting walking for the next few days.

2: I have a couple of classes where I have to walk across campus.

1: I understand. You might want to email your professors and explain the situation. I can write you a note if needed.

2: That would help a lot.

1: I'm also going to give you some compression wrap to reduce the swelling and provide support.

2: Thank you.

1: You should elevate your leg whenever possible and apply ice for 15 minutes, two or three times a day.

2: Got it.

1: If the pain continues past a few more days, or if it intensifies, you'll need to come back. We may consider doing imaging if it doesn't improve.

2: Understood.

1: I'll print out a care sheet for you with instructions. You'll be fine with a little rest and care.

2: I really appreciate it.

1: You're welcome. Let's check in next week if you still have symptoms.